“This is feeling really good in Mexico. Since the Australian Open, I didn't play any ATP tournaments until Los Cabos, so for a few weeks training hard, playing in Oslo. So I've had a great time in Mexico and tomorrow is the last day here, and I will try to make it worth it, of course. And do my best. But anyways, it has been a great trip here. And we'll give it”

“Alex [De Miñaur] is one of the best players on tour [ATP], so he will run around like he always does and will probably give me a hard time. I will do my best to have the legs as fresh, but I know that he's a really good mover and hard worker, so it's going to be a tough one. Last week I lost to an Australian player in the final [Jordan Thompson], so of course I would love to have some revenge, but it's going to be really tough. You know, he's, uh, playing, uh, fantastic here in, uh, Acapulco. He defending champion, and I will try my best to stop him for getting to two titles in a row.
